rorum in Academia Cantabrig. Commorantium;

Per Edoard. Millingtonum, Bibliop. Lond.

CATALOGUES may be had at Mr. Thurlburn's Bookseller at
Mr. J. Pindar's Coffee-house in Cambridge, and of
Edw. Millington in Little-Britain, London, 1700.

GENTLEMEN,

MY Design in Buying, and now in Selling this Library is to gratify the Learned, and to accommodate all Orders and Degrees of Studious Persons in this Celebrated University. It's some Years since that I sold by Auction in this Place, which Sale was generally encouraged, and constantly attended; and as happily concluded to the Mutual Satisfaction of the Buyers, and Proprietors: And I have no imaginable reason to doubt of the Issue of this Essay; the Library consisting of the most valuable and useful Books, Gr. Lat. Engl. in Divinity, Philology, &c. containing more good and fewer bad Books, than hath been hitherto sold in any Catalogue, being curiously bound, and clean Copies; which short Description of them, is in my Opinion an effectual Recommendation. I frankly own that I propose to my self an honest Gain in this Sale; and that I always did and now do esteem it a singular Priviledge to be permitted to exercise my Lungs amongst my Friends, and to have the Pleasure once more of breathing freely in this Learned Air.

Your Humble and Obligated Servant
